

Overview

In this episode we examine Nikola Tesla's wireless power experiments (Wardenclyffe), pyramid geometry, piezoelectric quartz, and the idea of resonant energy transfer. With no, or slim, evidence, Egyptologists claim that all of Egypt's pyramids were built to be tombs. Nikola Tesla had numerous unusual obsessions. Rising above the dunes of the desert, these towering creations appeared to overcome ancient limitations in architecture. But hidden beneath their symmetry and beauty, one. This number, 43,200, is relevant because it represents the axial precession of the Earth or the way in which it wobbles on its axis. 43,200 is a multiple of 72, which is the number of years it takes for one degree of that wobble.
