Which companies are not allowed to install photovoltaic panels

Overview

We explore four of the key reasons that utility companies may actually not want you to go solar. Technically, no state outlaws or bans solar panels; quite the opposite. Most states have solar access laws that forbid any agreement, covenant, condition, bylaw, or contract that outlaws or limits solar installations by Homeowners Associations (HOA) or other municipal bodies. While federal guidelines provide a baseline, local jurisdictions often implement additional requirements affecting everything from permit costs to HOA. Solar access laws can take different forms but include any law that protects your access to installing solar. Although this is a benefit to both consumers and utility. Most states provide legal protections for solar installations while allowing reasonable restrictions, and conflicts can be resolved through communication, HOA procedures, mediation, or legal action when rights are violated.
